

GEORGE ZOGLIO, CPA

Instructor

George has over 25 years of experience in accounting, auditing, taxation, budgeting and financial management, and reporting. He has served in senior management positions for public accounting firms, as well as for-profit and non-profit organizations. In addition to being an instructor with 20-20 Services LLC, he is also the principal of his own consulting firm, Zoglio Financial Management Solutions.

With a comfortable communication style, he has a knack for translating technical accounting and finance issues into “plain English”. His speaking engagement audiences have included financial managers, numerous boards and committees, commercial leaders, as well as peers. He has presented on topics such as identifying the warning signs of frauds, improving internal controls, UBTI issues, analysis and interpretation of financial statements, and business ethics.

He is a graduate of Bryant University, receiving both a Bachelor of Science in accounting, as well as a Master of Business Administration in management. He is a member of the Hospitality Financial and Technology Professionals, the AICPA, and both the Massachusetts and Rhode Island Societies of CPA. George is the Treasurer of the National Autism Association. He resides in Boston, Massachusetts.
